THOMPSON & TICE,

WOULD announce to the citizens of Janesville and vicinity, that they have bought out the interest of Mr. Loudon and have refitted their Rooms for the comfort and convenience of their visitors, where they still continue to take

"Pictures what is Pictures."

They have during the past year, taken 3,785 likenesses, and out of this number but 29 were returned. These they took over, free of charge, and made all satisfactory. They invite every one who wish to get a good likeness of themselves or friends, to give them a call. Their are unsurpassed in the State. They have taken the premiums two successive years, and as they are now better prepared to take likenesses, they still intend to make better Ambrotypes, Photographs and Daguerreotypes than was ever seen in Janesville, and don't except any East or West. They wish every one that would like to see PICTURES, to visit their rooms and take a look at their specimens, as they can show the best collection of pictures in the West. Ambrotypes from a full 4-size down to the smallest locket.

PHOTOGRAPHS,

Plain or colored, in a style that cannot be surpassed.
We return our sincere thanks to the public for the past year's patronage, and would solicit a continuance of the same.

Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention will be held at the city of Madison, in the Assembly Hall of the Capitol, on Wednesday, the 31st day of August next, at 12 o'clock M., for the purpose of nominating candidates for State officers to be supported by the party at the ensuing general election; and to transact any other business that may properly come before it.

As the subject of selecting delegates to the next National Convention may be entertained and acted upon by the Convention, it is suggested that the people in their primary caucuses, and the district conventions, make such expression as will intimate to their delegates and the State Convention, the general sentiment of the state on that subject.

Each Assembly District will be entitled to two delegates in the convention.

It is recommended that district conventions for the selection of delegates be held throughout the state, on or before the 20th day of August, and that committees make early calls for that purpose; and it is especially urged that every district be duly represented in the convention.

"A Serious Charge."

Under this head the Milwaukee Sentinel notices the fact that the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, and other papers, are making serious charges against the Post-Master General, to the effect that while curtailing and discontinuing the mail service in the northern states, under the pretence of lessening the expenses of the department, scarce a mail-route or post office has been meddled with at the south. Considering that in the northern states the post office is not only self-sustaining, but really a source of profit, while the southern mail service is sustained almost entirely by drafts upon the treasury, one would suppose that the former was deserving of some show of favor, instead of being the sole victim of the embarrassments of the department.

What else could be expected? When the retrenching process was commenced by the post office department, the prediction was made that its course would be precisely what is here charged. The black republican north, and especially the obnoxious northwest, MUST BE PUNISHED. This prediction has become a fact. The very object of putting a man from a slave state in charge of the post office department was to discriminate against the free states. The settled policy of the government would be disturbed, and the interests of the "democracy" would be subverted, if it were otherwise. Everything that does not wear the badge of slavery is tabooed at Washington. Every interest that does not directly tend to favor and strengthen the south is fettered and discouraged. Slavery is the alpha and omega of the protecting care of our national rulers. Postmaster General Holt is but one of the instruments used in the warfare upon the free states.

A HOAX.—The report which originated in a correspondent of the London Star, relative to the death of General Niel and Marshal Baraguay D'Hilliers, at the battle of Selferino, turns out to be a hoax. Neither Neil or Hillers were even wounded.

LOW PRICE OF WHEAT.—Good standard wheat sold in Chicago on Thursday at 51 cents. A few days since corn sold in that market for 11 cents more a bushel than spring wheat. The wheat now coming to market in the west is of the last year's crop and generally of an inferior quality.

RAILROAD RIOT.—We see it stated that a strike occurred on the Racine and Mississippi railroad, now in course of construction between Freeport and Davis—15 miles distant. The laborers receiving $1.10 per diem, demanded $1.25 and ten hours labor. Employers refused the conditions, and a serious row was the consequence. The sheriff of Stephenson county attempted to make arrests, but was roughly handled and beaten off. He called out the military and returned to the scene of action, arrested the leaders of the mob, and restored order, after which most of the laborers resumed work at the old rates. The whole disturbance was gotten up by a few men, and when they were removed peace and industry were restored.

Andrew E. Elmore, after a number of ballots has been re-elected chairman of the board of supervisors of Waukesha county, a place which he has held from a time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. The democrats voted against him generally and the republicans voted for him and elected him.—Free Democrat.

We can guess one board of supervisors where the republican members will not save the "Sage of Mukwanago" from his political friends. That board is the one which assembles on the 2d Wednesday of January in the capitol at Madison, commonly called the state senate. Andrew may be all "sound" in Waukesha, but he has "departed" too far from the ways of republicanism to be trusted away from home.

LOVES IT.—We know of no one who loves with a more hearty love a dig at the Buchanan administration than the political editor of the Madison Patriot. An opportunity to make a home thrust seems to do him more good than the best dinner. We have at different times copied some of his complimentary allusions to the "revered chief" of democracy, and have now another choice one to give our readers. Speaking of the Dred Scott decision, and the declared opinions of the different members of the court from which that decision emanated, the Patriot observes—"Judge Grier maintained with great ability the Pennsylvania view—profound silence."

When the quietness of that sarcasm is beaten, we will make a note of it.

CHESS CLUB.—The first meeting of the Chess Club was held Thursday evening, at which the following officers were elected:

D. Clute, President, L. Hanks, Vice President, F. Barrere, Secretary and Treasurer.

The next meeting of the Club will be held at the office of E. D. Tallman, on Monday evening next. Some twenty members are already enrolled.

The Mortgage Law.

MR. EDITOR:—In your paper of this morning we find the opinion of Judge Noggle, in which his honor gives his reasons for setting aside and vacating the judgment in the case of Samuel Williams against James M. Burgess and others. This opinion, we understand, is published for the purpose of informing attorneys in different parts of the circuit of the opinion entertained by the court on this perplexing question. There are some facts, and some points of law involved in the case, however, which we, as attorneys for the plaintiff in this action, consider of importance in order to understand the extent of this opinion, but which his Honor has omitted to notice.

With all respect to the honorable judge who has given this opinion, and without presuming to question its correctness in this article, we shall nevertheless take the liberty to state some facts in connection with the case, and some points which we urged on the argument, in order that the public, and especially our brothers at the bar, may understand more fully the extent and effect of this decision.

This action was commenced by the personal service of the summons and complaint on all the defendants on the 15th day of December, 1858. A short time afterwards all the defendants appeared in the case by attorneys. The six months to answer expired on the 15th day of June. On the 25th of June we obtained an order for judgment before Judge Orton while holding court at this place; whereupon two of the defendants asked the court by their counsel to vacate the judgment as to them, and assigned the following reasons, which are discussed at length in said opinion:

First—The summons required the defendants to answer in twenty days instead of six months.

Second—That at the time of the entry of said judgment there was no law then existing within this state authorising the entry of said judgment or the proceedings in said action.

It will be seen that the first reason given for vacating the judgment is that the plaintiff did not comply with the law of 1858; and the second reason is that the law of 1858 had been repealed, and that therefore there was no such law in existence. This may be good logic. The summons in this case, however, is strictly in accordance with the form prescribed by the legislature of the state. [R. S. sec. 2 and 3 chap. 124] But it is unnecessary in this case to discuss whether the summons should read twenty days or six months, or what the decision of the supreme court is in relation to it, for here there was a general appearance by all the defendants, which of course waives any irregularity in the summons, unless there should be affidavits accompanying the order to show cause clearly proving that the appearance was improper and unauthorized.

The second reason given for vacating the judgment embraces two questions:

First—Did the act of 1859 repeal the act of 1858 absolutely, or only so far as it might affect actions commenced after the 28th of March, 1859; or, in other words, so far as it may "contravene" the provisions of the act of 1859? Did it not simply introduce a new rule as to the length of time to answer in foreclosure cases? Does it destroy the old rule in regard to the length of time to answer in actions which cannot in any manner be affected by the new rule? Was it necessary to attach a saving clause to the law of 1859, in order to continue proceedings in cases already commenced?

Judge Orton, who signed the order authorizing this judgment, and who, it will be remembered, was in the legislature at the time the law of 1859 was passed, held that when the legislature fixed the time to answer, it was equivalent to an order of the court fixing the time, and that when the action had been commenced, the legislature could no more change the time as to that action than the court could change its own order without the consent of parties after they had acted in good faith on the strength of it.

He also held that a saving clause was unnecessary to continue proceedings had in actions commenced previous to the passage of the act of 1859, for the common law itself continued the proceedings, unless expressly changed by statute.

It has long been laid down as a principle of law "that when the law is altered by statute pending an action, the law, as it existed when the action was commenced, must decide the rights of the parties to the suit, unless the legislature express a clear intention to vary the relation of litigant parties to each other." [Palmer vs. Conly, 4 Denio, 376; the opinion of Bronson in Sackett vs. Andross, 5 Hill, 331.] The revised statutes of this state contain the substance of the common law in this particular—sec. 33, chap. 119.

It is true that "counsellors learned in the law" frequently "approve or disapprove" a certain construction of a statute, "just as their professional interest seems to dictate," and we make no pretensions of being less the subjects of human frailties than the mass of our brother lawyers, but in this instance it would seem that the bar is not the only branch of the profession that is divided. We have been unable to find anything in the law of 1859 which warrants the construction that the law of 1858 was absolutely repealed thereby.

Secondly—If the law of 1858 was absolutely repealed by the law of 1859, what is the effect of such repeal?

There are cases in the books in which courts have held that "where an act be penal and temporary by the terms or nature of it," or where it creates the right of action, the repeal of the statute creating such right of action, or fixing such penalty, "takes away all right of proceeding under the repealed statute even in regard to suits pending at the time of the repeal."

Butler agt. Palmer, 1 Hill, 331. 5 Cowen, 165. 5 Johnson, 165. 1 Kent Com. 465.

But this is not one of that class of cases. Here the right of action was not created by an act of the legislature, but by virtue of the note and mortgage upon which the action was brought. Should we admit therefore that the act of 1858 is absolutely repealed, yet it cannot affect this case, for this action did not grow out of a penal statute, nor did the mortgage law of 1858 create any right of action.

It has long been a rule of common law that "if a statute be repealed, and afterwards the repealing act be repealed, this revives the original act."

Wheeler agt. Roberts, 7 Cowen, 566;—Commonwealth vs. Churchill, Metcalf, 119 Collins vs. Smith, 6 Wheaton, 191; 1 Kent Com. 516.

The law of 1859 only applied to cases commenced after its passage, as will appear by the 1st and 5th sections of the act; and all actions commenced previously must be either governed by the law of 1858, or the law of 1856.

The law of 1858 gave the plaintiff no rights, and its repeal can take none away; it did however give the defendant six months time to answer the complaint, and it may be that its repeal takes away the right thus given, and leaves the defendant to answer in twenty days according to the general provisions of the law of 1856, which applied to all actions. This is our construction of the statutes of 1858, and 1859, in relation to the foreclosure of mortgages; and these are some of the points which we urged upon the attention of the court in opposing the motion to vacate the judgment. It may be that our positions are not sustained by the authorities. It may be that the citizens of Wisconsin have no rights except such as are at the will and disposal of the legislature of the state. The legislature may perhaps have the power and authority to send plaintiffs out of court, all over the state, by the simple repeal of a statute, and compel them to commence de novo, simply for the purpose of being again turned out of court by a second repeal, and this process may be repeated from year to year in the same action. And it may possibly be that all this is in accordance with sound principles of law, that no vested rights are affected by it, and it may be that the obligations of the original contract are not in the least impaired by such proceedings. Such a theory however would be in direct conflict with all our notions of law and legislation.

The 12th section of the first article of our state constitution, which the people in their sovereign capacity erected as a bulwark against hasty legislation, has no meaning, if the remedies which parties are compelled to make use of in order to enforce the provisions of a simple contract, can all be swept away and parties driven out of court by a simple scratch of the pen whenever the legislature may desire. If this is good law, the sooner it is declared to be such by the highest tribunal in the state, the better it will be for community generally.

Yours, &c.,
BENNETT, CASSODAY & GIBBS.
Janesville, July 21st, 1858.

THE SISTERS.

[Concluded.]

While he was speaking I had drawn out my card case and pencil, and on the back of one of my own cards had written "Miss Glenfield, Woods Cottage, Woods Lane;" and when he had finished speaking, presented the card and a guinea—the usual fee, I believe, of a morning visitor. He took them, and after glancing at them, placed them both in the pocket of his waistcoat, and then rising as I left my chair, he said: "I take this fee, Miss Rawlins," (Miss Rawlins! when he had just read as plain as the engraver could write, Miss Hall) "I receive this fee in testimony that I have undertaken the case; but I take no more. Whatever attendance or medicine Miss Glenfield may require, I will see to myself, and rest assured I will spare no pains. Good morning, Miss Rawlins," and bowing me out, he closed the street door.

That very morning I wrote to my sister, requesting her to apprise Miss Glenfield of the aurist's proposed visit, and, if possible, be at Woods Cottage herself the next afternoon; and also to inform me of the result of the interview. In compliance with my request, Caroline wrote that he had come according to promise; that he had given no decided opinion; that Miss Glenfield had borne the visit remarkably well, but that poor Rebecca had been much agitated.

Well, time passed on, Mr. Morton answering somewhat dubiously my occasional inquiries, till I received a letter from my sister, which rather surprised me; it ran thus:

"Dear Louisa—I wish you would ascertain positively whether Mr. Morton is married or not. I have asked Frederick—to be sure, only, as it were, casually; and he thinks he is unmarried. But I want to know positively. He comes very frequently to the cottage—more frequently than I am sure a case like hers demands. It is a sad thing to be deaf; but it is a much sadder thing to have her heart blighted—though perhaps it is already too late. If Mr. Morton is married, he sees Amelia no more, except at my house."

I was thunderstruck, and yet not a little amused at the idea of a young girl having her heart blighted by an eccentric surgeon of more than twice her age. I determined, however, to run down at once to Beconsfield—and see the aurist and Amelia myself. But it so happened on the next day when I went to the station, I discovered I had made a mistake. It was the arriving train I was in time for; the other would not depart in two hours. As I stood on the platform, vexed at my stupidity, I was accosted by a gentleman, whom, if I had not been addressed as "Miss Rawlins," I should never have recognized as Mr. Morton. He looked ten years younger than when I first saw him; his dress, too, was improved, and altogether he seemed to me a happy and quite a handsome man.

"Just come from Beconsfield, Miss Rawlins!" said he, taking my hand and pressing it warmly. "I wonder I did not see you before, but I suppose you must have been in another carriage. All well at home?"

"Quite well, sir; thank you," answered I rather distantly. "But how is Miss Glenfield?"

"Very well indeed—getting on nicely. But I see I am detaining you from your friends," as a group of strangers approached to where I was standing; and again pressing my hand, he bowed and hurried away. I was vexed, but as I had seen the doctor, what use was there in my waiting two hours to go to Beconsfield?

In the evening, as we were sitting at tea at home, I introduced the subject of Miss Glenfield's possible cure; and after alluding to Mr. Morton's skill, asked boldly whether he was married.

"Married!" repeated my mother, looking up in surprise. "No, Louise, no. He is one of those old bachelors who would grudge himself a wife. Why, Anne lived there as housemaid, and she says he keeps his servants on board-wages, and almost starves himself."

"I don't know," said I, vexed to hear the doctor depreciated, "what business Anne has to talk of those who employ her. He seems to me a kind and benevolent man."

"He may be so, Louisa, in his profession," remarked my father, looking up from his evening paper; "but depend upon it, he is not generally benevolent. Why, I once applied to him myself about the poor Poles, and he refused to subscribe one shilling; he never gave to public charities, he said—nor to private ones either, in my opinion."

All this was nearly conclusive, but I resolved to hazard another inquiry. The next morning, I went to a milliner, a friend of ours, who resided in the vicinity of Regent street. After admiring her elegant novelties, and attending to a little affair of my own, I spoke of my young friend and Mr. Norton, and then smilingly asked whether she worked for Mrs. Morton.

"I work for Mrs. Morton and her family too," replied my friend; "but not the lady of the aurist, but of his brother, a respectable solicitor. In fact, the Mr. Morton you mean has no wife, and if he had, I am afraid the poor lady would scarcely employ me"—she went on smiling and shrugging her shoulders—"for Mrs. Morton tells me he is terribly stingy."

As this confirmed what I had previously heard, I felt satisfied, but, before replying to my sister, resolved to call on Mr. Morton myself.

He was at home, and evidently very glad to see me; but when I said that my sister, Mrs. Rawlins, was very anxious to know when he could pronounce a decided opinion as regarded Miss Glenfield, I remarked that he colored, and seemed rather embarrassed. He paused a moment.

"To tell you the truth, Miss Rawlins," said he hurriedly, "I should like to finish the cure at home." He hesitated. I looked at him, but knew not what to reply. I suppose I must have appeared much delighted, for there was no mistaking his meaning. His own countenance brightened, and he went on, with little circumlocution, to say that he had conceived a great regard for Miss Glenfield; that he was sure she was the only woman who could make him happy; and that he was very desirous of making her his wife.

I could scarcely restrain my feelings at the idea of poor dear Amelia's good-fortune; however, I managed quietly to congratulate him on his choice, to speak in the highest terms of Miss Glenfield's ladylike demeanor, and her amiability and affectionate disposition; "but then," I added, "you know she is poor and friendless, and has a dependent sister."

"As to her sister," replied the aurist, "I like Rebecca almost as well as—as Miss Glenfield; and as to their being friendless, between you and me, Miss Rawlins, I don't think that much of a loss; I shouldn't like to be troubled with a wife's tribe of relations." Again the word wife! but I preserved a calm countenance; and as he hesitated anew, I ventured to ask when the wedding was to take place, "for I suppose," I added, "Miss Glenfield and you have already settled it."

"Why, no, Miss Rawlins; indeed, Amelia, has not settled anything; but I don't think she would object. I wanted to have spoken to you or Mrs. Rawlins: I think Mrs. Rawlins must be ill, for I have not seen her for some time; and, indeed, I did go to Mrs. Morton, my brother's wife, and requested her to visit Amelia, telling her that she was a daughter of the gentleman my brother had served his articles to. And what do you think she said—that she had no idea of visiting a mere adventuress! That woman shall never cross my threshhold again. Miss Glenfield is a gentlewoman, and could not have used such language. Could not you and Mrs. Rawlins manage the affair? I will write to Amelia this afternoon, to prepare her, as to the time, although the essential part I consider settled already; and pray, Miss Rawlins, let the matter be arranged as soon as possible, so that I may be able to attend to business as usual. There will be some little matters of dress required," he went on: "there are two fifty-pound notes for Amelia; if she wants more, you will be so good as to write. Of course, when she is in her own house, she will have everything at her own disposal. And there is another fifty for Rebecca; she will be an essential companion for her sister when I am from home."

I took the notes in perfect bewilderment. There was I, a young maiden of twenty or so, preparing for my own bridal, which was to take place in a fortnight, quietly arranging with a stranger the preliminaries for the wedding of another.

"But I forgot to tell you, Miss Rawlins," resumed Mr. Morton, "that I am going this evening to Mr. Glenfield, the proctor, Amelia's uncle. He has shamefully neglected her; but as he is her uncle, and is a respectable man, I will ask his consent to the marriage, and invite him to attend, if it was only to vex my brother's wife."

I walked home in a dream. Why do romancers puzzle their brains to bring about their consummations by means of extraordinary events and coincidences? Could anything be simpler than the present concatenation, anything wilder than the result? These two poor, lonely, helpless girls, whom I had left sitting by their cottage-door, working for bread—the one in utter darkness, the other surrounded by a dread silence which thunder itself could not break—behold them now coming forth from their solitude into comfort, competence, and society; the blind clothed in smiles of happiness, and feeling no want of eyes as she leans on her sister's arm, and the deaf with love in her full heart, and the music of all nature in her ears! I was delightful to think that I had myself a part in bringing about this consummation; and yet, as I walked, my eyes filled, and, in spite of all my efforts, the tears came rolling down my cheeks.

Soon after, my marriage took place, and I removed to another part of the country. In due time—that is to say, in less than a month—I received a letter from my mother, giving me all the news. My mother stated that she had bestowed as much attention, and felt almost as much interest in Miss Glenfield's bridal, as she could have done in that of one of her own daughters. She added, she was not at all surprised at the interest I had evinced in Mr Morton's choice; "and I really begin to be of your opinion, Louisa, as to his kindly disposition; and as for his being parsimonious—so far as I have seen—it is rather Mrs. Morton, who will limit the expenditure of the family. I wish you had seen Miss Glenfield in her bridal dress—she looked so beautiful, so calm, so ladylike. Poor Rebecca scarcely knew what to do; but I had her by my side, and she wept tears on my bosom. Poor girl! she whispered to me that she thought it was the first time she had ever really regretted her loss of sight, she should so like to see her sister.—Chamber's Journal.

To Messrs. Palmer & Williams, John H. Marsy, and others:

GENTLEMEN:—You had the advantage of me upon the trial of Reapers a few days since, upon the farm of Mr. Leonard, from the fact that a slight alteration was necessary in my machine to its perfect adaptation to mowing. I never having tested it before in grass, I could not see, nor could it be expected that I should see, what was wanting. I have since made the said alterations and thoroughly tested it, and the result is, that I am now prepared to meet you upon another and fairer trial, and select for ourselves, men of integrity and honor,—men who will not swerve from the truth to accommodate a friend at the expense of others,—who shall test the machines with the proper apparatus, and otherwise judge of their merits or demerits, as the case may be; and for this purpose, I will appoint Saturday, the 30th inst., to meet upon my farm one mile south of the south city limits, or at any other convenient place, subsequent to that time.

Most respectfully yours,
D. CLOW.

We have no objection to letting mad dogs bite, if they "bite the dust."—Milwaukee News.

Say all unmuzzled dogs, and we are with you.

Judge Hall, of the United States district court, now sitting at Albany, has decided that a drop letter cannot be considered as a letter to "be conveyed by post," and has ordered a verdict of not guilty to be rendered in the case of William B. Hubbard, penny postmaster of Syracuse, who was indicted for opening letters in his custody as mail carrier.

The Cunard company have contracted for the immediate construction of several large first-class steamers to take the place of those recently sold to the Spanish government.

JANESVILLE WHOLESALE MARKET.

Reported for the Janesville Daily Gazette by Bump & Gray,
GRAIN AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

JANESVILLE, July 23, 1859.

The market was again dull yesterday, with but little grain of any kind in during the day, and prices, with the exception of corn and rye, were about the same as the day before. Corn sold at 45a52c per 60 lbs shelled, and 40a45c per 70 lbs ear. We note sales of two loads of new rye raised and brought to market by Mr. Conklin, of the town of Rock, and purchased by Pixley & Harlow at 50c per 60 lbs. The grain was in good condition, the berry being bright and plump, and what we consider a fair specimen of the crops generally.

We make up prices as follows:

WHEAT—white winter, 90a1,10; fair to very choice milling spring, 75a95; stump tail to fair No. 1, 45a65.

RYE—new, 45a50c per 60 lbs.

BARLEY—selling in small lots at 30 to 40c, per 50 lbs.

CORN—shelled, per 60 lbs, 45a52c; ear per 70 lbs, 40 a45.

OATS—declined to 20a25 for fair to choice ones.

POTATOES—dull at 50a60 for fair to choice.

BUTTER—plenty at 10a12½ for good to choice roll.

EGGS—dull at 8a8½ per doz.

HIDES—green, 6a6½c; dry flint, 12a14c.

POULTRY—chickens 1a6. Turkeys 6a7c.

FLOUR—Spring, at retail, 2,25a2,50 per 100 lbs; winter 4,00.

WOOL—ranges from 20 to 40 for common to choice fine clean slips.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

☞ The pews in the M. E. Church will be rented on Monday, the 25th inst, at 2 o' clock P. M. One-fourth of the rent will be required in advance, the balance in 3, 6 and 9 months

WHORTLEBERRIES.—R. I. Pierson, third door above the Central Bank, is supplied daily with fresh whortleberries from Chicago.

A NEW FEATURE OF TRAVEL.—The Brodhead Reporter says a train was run from Monroe to that place last Saturday evening to accommodate such of the Monroe people as wished to bathe in Sugar river. About 50 persons availed themselves of the chance. Another run for the same purpose will be made to-night. There is no body of water, sufficient and convenient for bathing nearer Monroe than Sugar river, where it passes through Brodhead.

ANOTHER MAD DOG.—One day this week another mad dog was killed in the city limits. He was first discovered on the premises of H. P. Culver, up the river, where he bit a calf and a hog. He was pursued, and killed some distance from the residence of Mr. C., but not until he had bitten several horses, and passed through a neighborhood where dogs are almost as numerous as fleas in a sand-bank. It is hardly possible that he could have passed that neighborhood without biting several of the dogs that infest it.

The laudable zeal which sometime since was exhibited in the confinement or destruction of the worthless curs which abound in the city, seems to have abated, but it is necessary that the good work should be resumed and prosecuted diligently. Many of the worthless animals that are kept close in the day, are let loose in the night, and the night police can do an acceptable service by leaving a number of dead carcasses in their beats. A little volunteer work by our citizens gone.ally, moreover, would do no harm.

TELEGRAPH IN DETOIT.—The Herald of Wednesday, 20th, says—"the work of stretching the telegraphic wire from Belvidere to this place was commenced at Belvidere on Monday. The operating instruments are already here, and the telegraph will probably be in operation by Friday."

The editor of the Janesville Gazette says he speaks from "positive knowledge" when he says that Janesville is moral enough to reform the devil, even. Very candid that.—Milwaukee News.

The News suppresses a material qualification. It was a "Madison devil" in which we had the faith we expressed. If a Milwaukee representative of his brimstone majesty should be put under our care, we should make no promises, especially if he came from the News office.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Arrival of the Africa.

TWO DAYS LATER.

NEW YORK, July 21.

The steamship Africa has arrived with European dates to the 9th.

An armistice has been agreed on between the contending parties till the 15th of August. The effect of this has been a great buoyancy in all the money markets, and strong hopes were entertained of peace.

Cotton had advanced. Breadstuffs and provisions were dull.

THE WAR.—On the 7th Napolon telegraphed that an armistice was agreed upon on the 8th. It was signed at Villa Franca by Hess and Vaillants, and ends on the 15th of August. It stipulates that commercial vessels without distinction of flag be allowed to navigate the Adriatic unmolested.

The Moniteur cautions the public against misunderstanding the armistice. It says negotiations may commence, but it does not see how war may be terminated.

The London Times believes in peace, and says it is well authenticated that the proposal came from France, indicating a good moderation, or the necessities of the French, but does not believe it was the latter. France reaps all the benefit of the armistice either way. The armistice caused much excitement. Consols advanced 1½ and 2 per cent. on the Paris Bourse. The advance was 2½. The other continental Bourses advanced materially. The Austrian funds at Frankfort rose 10 per cent. prior to the declaration of the armistice. The Sardinians proceeded vigorously to the siege of Peschiera. But this and other movements have now lost their interest.

In the Federal Diet on the 7th Austria proposed to mobilize the whole Federal contingent, and requested the Prince Regent of Prussia to assume the command in chief.

ENGLAND.—The seizure of the British ship Laura, at Baltimore, in the coasting trade between New York and California, via the Isthmus, claimed the attention of the House of Commons. The government promised to represent the matter to the federal authorities at Washington.

The navy estimates had been introduced in Parliament, and 10,000 additional men asked for. It is reported that the mail steamers have been notified to prepare to carry armaments according to their contracts.

SECOND DESPATCH.

The London Times says, with regard to the armistice, "there is little to communicate beyond what the public already know. All that seems to be authenticated is that the proposal came from France, and was the result of the Emperor's own determination. That the Emperor Napoleon should stop short in a career of victory, and make overtures to the foe whom he has defeated in two pitched battles and pushed back to the limits of Lombardy, argues the moderation or the necessities of the French ruler. We can hardly believe that the latter has been the cause of his sudden resolve."

STOCKHOLM, July 8.

His Majesty King Oscar died to-day. He was born on the 5th of July, 1799.

VIENNA, July 8.

The Austrian Correspondence contains the following: The French frigate Imperieuse bombarded Zara yesterday. The fortress returned the fire. The Imperieuse at last broke off the contest, appearing to have suffered injury.

The Vienna Gazette publishes an amended list of the killed and wounded at Solferino.—As to officers, the return gives 90 killed, 314 wounded, 13 made prisoners, and 70 missing. Total 587. Of rank and file, 2,005 killed and 8,621 wounded, making a grand total of 11,218. Nothing is said respecting the number taken prisoners.

The number of French and Sardinians killed and wounded was 18,245.

The number given by the Vienna journals is believed to be still below the truth.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times says that on the 33 inst. the French fleet, consisting of 84 sail, was at no great distance from Venice.

The Hungarian legion forming at Genoa is to be clothed like the Hungarian soldiers in the Austrian army, as it is believed the latter will not fire on men wearing the national costume.

The gun boats destined for the bombardment of Peschiera have been launched at Lago di Garda.

A letter from Trebigone says that Persia is making great preparations in anticipation of a war with Turkey.

The Presse, of Vienna, says that another French squadron of ten vessels was seen from Trieste on the 5th instant bearing towards Venice.

A semi-official correspondence from Madrid declared that while desiring Italian independence, Spain will still maintain her neutrality so long as the Italian Princes and the Church are maintained.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

...Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and needs only to be tried to be appreciated.—And to a mother while nursing, these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system.—Ladies should by all means try this remedy for all cases of debility, and before so doing, ask your physician, who, if he is acquainted with the virtue of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

CAUTION.—We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr J Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.

Prepared and sold by Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., and sold by all druggists, grocers, and dealers generally throughout the United States, Canada, South America and Germany. 24y1

HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILL. Children Cry for them.

This remarkable American remedy is carrying the world by storm. Over five millions of boxes are sold annually. Composed entirely of flowers, roots, balsams and extracts, their effect on the human system is pleasing satisfactory and successful. Acting directly on the blood, glands, solids and fluids of the body, their use is attended with the happiest effect. In sudden attacks of disease one or two doses always cures. In old standing cases of sickness, small doses repeated frequently so cleanses the system, that good health is the result. No change in employment or diet is necessary. They never cause sore mouths, swelled joints, aching limbs, etc., as do many other kinds. They are warranted to give satisfaction, or the price will be refunded. They are considered cheaper, safer, prettier, and in all respects superior to any purgative pill in the world. The discovery of coating a pill with sugar emanated with Dr. Herrick. All others are counterfeits, and if used, will do harm, and disappoint the sick.—Herrick's Pills are elegantly put up—30 in a box, with a large sheet of directions, and sell for 25 cents per box; 5 boxes for $1.

Arnold's

Combined Grinding Mill, Corn and Cob Crusher,

and

CORN-SHELLER.

Three Valuable Machines in One!

THIS is a new invention, and one that is well worthy the attention of the public, the farming portion in particular; combining as it does, three valuable machines in very simple and portable form, and being afforded at a price that brings it within the reach of every one that has need of such a Mill.

The combination has been pronounced by those who have the mill in use to be one of the best ever made, and the great value of the combination will be readily seen when the fact is considered that each machine makes a necessity for the other. Having a Mill makes a necessity for a Sheller, a Sheller for a Mill, &c.

Being adapted to the use of the farmer by horse power, as a farm implement it scarcely has an equal in value.

It is also adapted to steam, water or wind power.—It is capable of grinding from five to ten bushels per hour, requiring from two to three horse power, according to the quantity and quality of the work done.

It grinds sufficiently fine for family use, making a superior quality of meal, ... [illegible]

It will shell fifty to sixty bushels per hour, and will grind and shell at the same time.

It will crush fifteen to twenty bushels of corn and cob per hour, and will crush and grind at the same time.

It is light and portable, weighing about 800 lbs., and occupying a space of less than two by three feet.

The grinding surfaces are very durable, being made of iron as hard as hardened cast steel, and when worn out can be replaced without the aid of a mechanic, at the trifling cost of One Dollar and Fifty cents, thus overcoming entirely the great objection to Iron Mills. Particular attention is called to this feature in the mill, as the difficulty of replacing grinding surfaces in iron mills, when worn out, is an objection that has been urged with great force against them, and has had the effect to prevent thousands from purchasing, who otherwise would be glad to do so. That objection is entirely done away with in this mill.

Millers would do well to examine this mill, there being no doubt that they will find it for their interest to adopt it for a feed mill, as the grinding surfaces are replaced at a much less cost than is required to keep a stone mill in order, to say nothing of the great saving in power and cost of mill.

An examination of this mill is most earnestly solicited, as it must be seen in operation to be fully understood and appreciated.

Cards of direction are attached to each mill, which will enable any one to set up and operate them without further instructions.
